50 GALLONS CONFISCATED

Beer, Whisky, Wine Found Hidden About Property; Charges Not Filed.

Raiding a building formerly housing a general store at Lynn station five miles south of here on the Pennsylvania railroad county authorities assisted by police Saturday night confiscated large quantities of whisky, wine and beer and arrested three persons

Those under arrest are Mrs Susan Miller, her husband Claude Miller 34 and Bernard Beer, 23 The nature of charges to be placed against them had not been determined this morning

Dance Hall in Front

Authorities found the front end of the store room made into a dance hall, while rooms in the rear evidently had been used for dispensing liquors A small quantity of liquor was found in the building when authorities made the raid shortly before midnight Saturday Beer was arrested while dumping a quantity of liquor, authorities say

The bulk of the liquor which probably will aggregate more than 50 gallons, was found buried ant hidden about the property Sheriff Fye and Deputies M E Baldwin and Chester Cosgrove returned to the premises Sunday morning and found much liquor concealed in bushes underbrush and in the ground near the building

Authorities drove past the alleged speakeasy Saturday night before making the raid At that time many automobiles were parked around the building When a search warrant was drawn here, officers returned, but found the place barren of customers While the raid was in progress several automobiles stopped in front of the store, but all left hurriedly when they saw authorities One visiting automobile was searched.

Held Second Plane

Early Sunday morning police raided rooms in the rear of a flat on north Main street which Mrs. Susan Miller and her husband were said to have occupied A quantity of liquor was found, but Mr and Mrs. Miller denied ownership of it.

The room raided at Lynn station was a thriving general store in the heart of a community years ago Lynn station was a shipping point on the Pennsylvania railroad for practically all stock and produce raised in that vicinity. The advent of trucks decreased the volume of shipping, and the community two years ago was abandoned as a railroad station.

Flames Threaten To Complete Destruction of British Honduras City.

ESTIMATE 1,000 DEAD

Hurricane Victims Cremated or Buried in Trenches To Prevent Disease.

By The Associated Press

BELIZE British Honduras, Sept 14—Fire threatened to complete the destruction of storm and flood today as the work of burying and cremating the dead from last week's hurricane now estimated at more than a thousand, went forward

The suburb of Mesopotamia was menaced by flames that spread rapidly in spite of unceasing efforts on the part of soldiers and civilians to block their path An inflammable liquor warehouse was in the path of the conflagration and fears of an explosion spurred the fighters to frantic measures

Scores of bodies were burned on five great pyres almost in the center of the once-flourishing city, now in ruins At least 700 bodies were buried in crude trenches dug in the cemetery by convict labor Still more bodies floating down river from the interior made an accurate check of the dead impossible Cremation was resorted to because of the fear of disease.

Hundreds of those maimed and cut by the fury of the storm were being treated with medical aid rushed by airplane and ship.

About one person in every 14 among the city's population of 16 000 lost his life Hardly a family was not affected by death or injury

The Stars Say—
For Tuesday, Sept. 15

THE general cast of events, according to the day's lunar transits, is fairly fortunate, although there may prove to be some small anxieties in employment and the favorable conditions may be offset by a tendency to pleasure and personal extravagance or excess. Writings and secret agreements may flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a fairly favorable year, with gains through writings, secret agreements or affiliations with mergers or secret bodies but be careful with funds squandered in personal indulgence or extravagance. A child born on this day may be moderately talented, and gain its ends by subtlety, but may imperil its best interests by speculative tendencies, personal indulgence or extravagance.

Notable nativity: Wm. H. Taft, ex-President United States.

FORMER OHIOAN DEAD

SCARSDALE, N. Y., Sept. 14—Neal R. White, 49, a native of Urbana, O., was found dead in his cellar yesterday, apparently a suicide. His throat had been cut with a bread knife. White was treasurer of the firm which operates Whyte's restaurant in Fifth avenue, New York.

Mean Trick

WHILE a resident of the east side sat in the kitchen at his home several nights ago, reading with considerable indignation of the boldness of burglars and thieves in our wicked big cities, six feet away on a rear porch a member of the offending clan was quietly but most effectively removing and consuming from a refrigerator belonging to the indignant citizen, cold meats and other choice viands he had placed there a short time before with visions of a little snack before retiring.

A slight noise he heard coming through the open door of the kitchen while he was reading, the citizen attributed to some meandering dog or cat, and great was his wrath when, with his mouth all fixed for the snack, he visited the refrigerator later to find that, compared to it, old Mother Hubbard's cupboard was a well-stocked delicatessen. Articles of food which had not appealed to the aesthetic tastes of the visitor, had been tossed on the ground.

Good Substitute

A POSSIBLE successor for breakfast food was recently suggested by a Marion citizen.

The suggestion is timely, due to the present low price of the ingredients and the need of some families for inexpensive food.

The suggestion is that four or five families in a group purchase a bushel of wheat, which will cost less than 50 cents, clean it thoroughly, and then have it cracked at a flour mill or some similar place. When cooked this will produce a highly delectable breakfast food in sufficient quantities for several families.

Competition

LITTLE girls in the first grade at the Greenwood street school building, taught by Miss Clara Kowalke, can be mighty choicy in bestowing their smiles this year and still be assured of having them welcomed by one or more of the male of the species, for the roster shows that there are three boys for every little girl registered this term. What spoiled darlings they may turn out to be for just the prospect of being the only nine girls with a male gallery running into such figures is enough to turn any maiden's head, to say nothing of promoting visions of lollypops, apples, gaily-colored crayons and what not. Anything may happen though and the 27 stalwarts may decide early in the game to organize a bachelors club.

Learns New Trick

THE connection between a Boston bulldog, pieces of peppermint candy and the postoffice brings forth a quaint story.

The bulldog, which is probably two or three years old, escorts a hotel porter to the postoffice three or four times a day and has done this for some time. After seeing the dog frequently, Mrs. L. E. Cookston of the registry department, offered candy to him from the registry window.

Now as soon as he enters the building he streaks for the window and putting his fore-paws on the wall, waits until someone comes with his candy. If the porter should leave before the dog has been noticed, he will not wait but will follow him immediately and no one can call him back, even to get his candy. But as long as the porter is there, he will wait. When the candy is offered he will "speak" once without being told and upon prompting will speak the second time, after which he receives one piece of peppermint candy. He will then wait until the second piece is offered, when he will again speak.

The dog will not ask for more than two pieces at a time, and peppermint candy seems to be the only kind he cares for so Mrs. Cookston keeps a supply on hand for her canine friend.

Apples, Peaches Vie for Honors in Impromptu Contest for Size

Attracted by a story in The Star Friday concerning 14-ounce apples grown by a Lebanon, O., woman, two Marion county men stepped forward today with tales of their prowess as fruit-growers.

An apple exceeding those grown by Mrs. Hayes of Lebanon by five ounces was reported by Levi H. Lukens of Waldo. The apple was grown by T. R. Conklin of Waldo and weighed 19 ounces. The apple, which measures 13½ inches in circumference, is on display at the Conklin hardware store at Waldo.

Clyde C. Smith of 554 Girard avenue, a postoffice clerk, tells of a peach crop from a five-year old tree which he raised from a seedling. The peaches had an average weight of 12 ounces and several weighed as high as 17 ounces on the postoffice scales. One peach measured 11 inches in circumference.

A basket of eight of these peaches weighed nine pounds. Allowing a pound for the weight of the basket, which is overly-generous, witnesses said, the eight peaches averaged 16 ounces apiece.

Mrs. Smith attributes the large sized fruit to a treatment of a crate of soda which was administered last spring to the roots of the tree.

PICTURES ON PROGRAM

Moving pictures will be the entertainment at an open meeting of Progressive grange, Tuesday night at the Shrock school on the Richland pike.

Wheat Sags as Liverpool Reports Increase in Stock; Corn Steady.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO Sept. 14—Grains went lower early today influenced by reports of free offerings of Canadian wheat abroad and by increased stocks of wheat at Liverpool Securities weakness was also a bearish factor Opening ¼-⅝ declined and subsequently held near the initial range.

Contributing added force to downturns of grain prices was increased commission house selling of corn. March corn quotations fell to a new bottom level for the season Part of the pressure on corn was ascribed to a report from a Chicago crop expert just returned from a 2 000 mile trip through the west and southwest. He said the corn crop was further advanced than usual and that a killing frost coming before the ordinary time would do much less damage than generally expected from such an occurrence

In connection with enlarged stocks of wheat at Liverpool more than quadruple those of a year ago it was pointed out that this week's world shipments included 6 056 000 bushels from Russia. Advices were at hand that Russian plans for "dumping" in other countries had been approved by the commissariat of foreign trade at Moscow, and were being put into effect. The plans were reported to include the disposal thus of no less than 8,000 000 tons of wheat from this year's

SAN PEDRO Calif, Sept 14—Abandoned by her passengers and crew and battered by heavy seas the Panama mail liner Colombia today lay on the rocky reef of Santa Marguerita island 670 miles south of here off the lower California coast

All of 230 passengers and crew of 100 were aboard the United Fruit company's liner La Paria due to arrive at Los Angeles Harbor Wednesday Their rescue in the early hours of yesterday morning was related today, in radio messages which paid tribute to the heroism of the officers crew and passengers

Martin E Moisant a passenger from El Salvador radioed a description of the scene on the darkened decks of the Colombia while passengers prepared to take to the life boats It said

"There was no panic no hysteria to be noted This was averted by common sense on the part of the officers and by precise and stern orders at the same time Never has it been our lot to see men show a finer example of coolness and this applies to both officers and men"

The wrecking of the Colombia a few minutes before midnight Saturday was the third accident in which she had figured in the last seven years

Orders to take to the life boats was given by the captain shortly after the ship hit the reef Within three hours the San Mateo another United fruit liner was at the scene in response to the Colombia's S O S appeal

The eight life boats of the Colombia were picked up by the San Mateo with their human cargoes and taken aboard

Late last night the passengers and crew were transshipped to La Paria which was proceeding northward when it intercepted the S O S call The San Mateo was proceeding southward to Central American ports whereas the Colombia was heading northward

Village, Rural Schools Cut Budget Requests $37,033

15 Districts in County Ask Total of $262,741

Reduced Salaries Voluntarily Accepted by Teachers Bring About Most of Decrease; Two Divisions To Require More.

Village and rural school districts of Marion county, in 1932 budgets on file with County Auditor Earl E. Thomas, ask $37,033 12 less than the amount appropriated for these districts in 1931.

The county's 16 school districts, excepting Marion city district, estimate their needs in 1932 at $262,741.54. In 1931 the total appropriations made for the districts was $299,774 66.

The budgets represent the estimates of school boards of their 1932 needs for general operating expenses and for debt retirement purposes. The budgets will be used by the county budget commission in making up the school district tax rate.

A good share of the reductions made in various districts is represented in the 10 per cent reduction in the salaries of all superintendents, teachers and supervisors, voluntarily taken for the 1931-32 school term which includes five months in 1932. Other retrenchment steps were taken in schools throughout the county.

The 1932 school budgets are calculated to be the needs of the schools from Jan. 1, 1932, to Dec. 31, 1932.

Thirteen districts filed budgets for amounts less than their 1931 appropriations. Two district boards asked for increased amounts.

Pleasant Higher

Pleasant township rural school district is asking for the largest budget of all village and rural districts, a total of $34,850 50 including $26,500 for general operating expenses and $8,350 50 for debt retirement. This total is higher than the $29,190 54 appropriated for this district in 1931.

Prospect village district asks $32,000 for 1932 including $18,000 for operating expenses and $14,000 for debt retirement. In 1931, $26,736 67 was appropriated for this district.

LaRue village schools will require $29,550 in 1932, the board has estimated. Of this amount, $22,300 will be required for operating expenses and $7,250 for debt. In 1931, $32,169.24 was appropriated for LaRue schools.

Estimated general expense needs of $12,285 and debt requirements of $6,560 24 combine to make Green Camp village school requirements in 1932 a total of $18,845.24. This figure is well below the $22,781.40 appropriated for Green Camp for 1931.

Marion Township Down

Marion township rural school district has no debt, and the trustees estimate their general operating needs at $17,610 50 for 1932. For 1931, $22,597.00 was appropriated.

Agosta village school districts asks for $17,500 for 1932, including $16,000 for operating expenses and $2,500 for debt. In 1931, $17,772 07 was appropriated for Agosta schools.

Claridon township rural school requirements for 1932 are estimated at $12,500 for operating expenses and $4,750 for debt, making a total of $17,250. In 1931, $17,866 85 was appropriated for this district.

Caledonia village schools estimate their 1932 needs at $15,106 80, nearly $5,000 less than the amount appropriated for 1931. The 1932 requirements are divided into operating needs of $15,000 and debt requirements of $106 80. The 1931 appropriations, for this district amounted to $20,101 92.

Another decided reduction is noted in the Montgomery township budget, which asks for $14,755 in 1932 as compared with 1931 appropriations totaling $20,265 16. The 1932 needs are divided between a general fund of $9,700 and a debt of $5,055.

A cut of more than $4 000 was made by the Morral village school board, which asks for $13 275 in 1932 as compared to its 1931 appropriation of $17 288 58. The 1932 needs include $10 500 for operating expense and $2 775 for debt purposes.

Scott township rural district requirements have been estimated at $12,000 including a general fund of $9 500 and a debt fund of $2 500. In 1931 this district was given an appropriation totaling $13,598 88.

$5 000 Lower

A reduction of more than $5,000 was volunteered by the Waldo village board, which asks for $12,000 in 1932, as compared with $15,127 65 appropriated for the district in 1931. The 1932 needs include a general fund of $12,000. This district this year paid off its last outstanding debt.

Tully township with no outstanding debt either this year or next, is asking $11,990 50, a cut of more than $3 000 under $15 228 97 appropriated for the district in 1931.

Grand Prairie township rural district also has no debt, but its general needs will be greater next year than in 1931, the board estimated. The budget asks for $11,000 for 1932 as compared with $9,638 54 appropriated for 1931.

Richland township rural district more than cut its budget in half, asking for $5,000 for operating expenses in 1932. In 1931, the appropriation for this district was $10,770.

What I'd Have In My Wardrobe This Fall
by "Humane"

If I were enrolled in University this Fall . . I would be doubly sure to have a dark oxford of a very dark brown and a dark grayish blue suit. These might be in worsted or basket weave fabric . . . In hats, I would have, first of all a very dark brown snap brim. My preference in neckwear would be for small figured effects. I'd also have a pair of brown wing-tip shoes.

FIRE DESTROYS NEW HAY BARN

Spontaneous Combustion Is Blamed for $1,700 Loss at Five Points.

Fire, believed caused by spontaneous combustion, destroyed a recently completed hay-barn last night on the farm of W. C. Wilcox at Five Points, five miles east of Marion on the Harding highway. Damage was estimated at about $1700.

The fire was first noticed by passersby at 8 p. m. who notified Wilcox at a filling-station near the home. Wilcox, with the assistance of neighbors, removed a number of tools and other articles from the burning structure.

The mow was filled with hay and straw, which, with the building, constituted most of the damage. The loss was partly covered by insurance. An automobile in the barn was slightly burned before being removed.

The barn, which measured 30 by 40 feet, was completed about two months ago.

DANDRUFF! how to get rid of it

Quickly . . Pleasantly . . Inexpensively

IF your scalp itches or burns, if hair falls, and often do, follow, and often do.

If your hair is thinning or you are troubled with loose dandruff, begin using full strength Listerine, systematically, as an antiseptic shampoo. Simply douse it on and massage the scalp as vigorously as you can.

Literally tens of thousands have rid themselves of a dandruff condition with Listerine. They are simply amazed by the speed with which it gets results.

In cases of dandruff the fat glands about the hair become overactive throwing off a disgusting greasy whitish substance known as sebum. This forms in crusts and scales.

Neglect is dangerous

The hair, meanwhile, seems literally to be stifled. It grows lustreless, lifeless, falls out. The scalp feels hot and itchy. If the condition is not treated promptly, eczema and baldness may follow, and often do.

At the first symptom of trouble, the fight against loose dandruff should begin. Consider Listerine's effectiveness against this condition.

If infection is present on the surface of the skin, Listerine attacks it. A powerful germicide, it kills bacteria in 15 seconds, the fastest killing time accurately recorded by science.

Listerine helps to dissolve oily crusts and quickly removes them. And Listerine quickly relieves that burning, itching sensation. It soothes inflamed or irritated areas of the scalp.

If scalp is excessively dry, a little olive oil may be used in connection with the Listerine shampoo, or independent of it. The oil aids in dissolving crusts and scales and keeps hair from drying out. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U.S.A.

STOMACH DISTRESS; GAS, BLOATING, PAIN

Persons with a sick stomach usually feel sick all over—with agonizing gas pains, indigestion, shortness of breath If these conditions depress and discourage you, get the new medicine, Ton-Gee. This great doctor's prescription is a liquid compound of nature's finest medical herbs. It will clear your stomach and intestines of old gas, sourness, half-digested substances and impure "matter," which impurities often half-fill the stomach and intestines and coat the linings Cleansing out these quantities of impure substances permits freer flow of the digestive juices, makes the digestive organs sweet and clean.

PLANS MADE FOR FARM INSTITUTES

O. S. U. Specialists to Assist In Arranging Programs

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 14 — Presidents of Ohio's 600 farmers' institutes are studying ways to increase the effectiveness of institute work, according to specialists at Ohio State university who during the next few months will confer with institute officers to aid them in planning their fall programs.

Surveys, bulletins, and special mimeographed material, they say, are being used by institute officers in planning their meetings to meet the needs of their communities. Among the topics now being considered by this statewide group of rural leaders are: how to conduct a junior institute, the exhibiting of farm produce, organizing music for institutes, obtaining speakers, and selecting topics.

Successful farmers and their wives, school board members, township trustees, school superintendents, local ministers, 4-H club leaders and many others will participate in institute programs during the winter.

The Grange, the Farm Bureau, Parent-Teacher associations, local lodges and others, also will play an active part in forming institute programs.

SEES HOPE FOR FRUIT MARKET

Chance for Profitable Sales by Ohio Growers Is Seen in Survey.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 14 — The apple market offers some hope this fall to growers who are good salesmen, according to Carl J. West, research director of the Ohio Farm Bureau. Pointing out that there is a bumper crop, but that overproduction is not as serious as in the case of the peach crop, West said Ohio apple growers, with quality fruit, will have relatively less competition from western apples than in some other years.

"Apple prices will be low this fall and winter, but there should be a sale at some price for the better grade of fruit," continued West. "The discouraging results from the enormous peach crop this year should not cause apple growers to hold back in efforts at marketing.

Estimated High

"The apple crop outlook is estimated by the government to be above last year in all sections of the country except in the northwestern states, and to exceed the 10-year average in all sections except the northwest. The excess over the 10-year average is greater in Ohio and the other central states.

"Baldwins in New York state are reported to be in especially fine condition. There is said to be in prospect a large production of apples of low grade in New York. Unless prices for cider and evaporated apples should be very favorable there will be a heavy abandonment of apples in that state. The total western New York apple crop is estimated to be about the same as last year.

"In the state of New York, greening and mackintosh varieties are reported to be in smaller volumes than last year. Generally, the summer and early fall and winter crops in that state are below last year.

"Michigan orchards are carrying a full crop of apples of good variety, though conditions are reported as uneven in all sections.

Large Virginia Crop

"Virginia has an excellent crop of apples throughout the state. The size of the apples is reported as at about average. The crop is so large in this state that only the better grades will be marketed.

"In West Virginia apples are plentiful in all sections, especially in the western half.

"The northwestern apples have been threatened in size by the scarcity of water for irrigation.

"The total United States production of commercial apples may reach 40,000,000 barrels as against 34,000,000 last year and a five-year average of 33,000,000. Abandonment may reduce the commercial crop to 37,000,000 or 38,000,000.

TO PLAN RELIEF WORK

BUCYRUS, Sept. 14—The central Welfare association board will hold its first meeting of the season tonight when the relief program for the coming winter will be arranged. The association is now sponsoring a canning project for needy relief during the winter.

A warm night . . . a hint of "B.O." . . . and romance ends with the first dance!

WATCH OUT FOR "B.O."

You may have it . . and not know it. Yet no one dares tell you . . why take chances?

CARELESSNESS about "B.O." (body odor) can cost so much—popularity, friendship, even love itself! For your own sake, don't risk it.

Face the unpleasant fact that anyone may offend—especially right now when heat and humidity make us perspire more freely. We seldom notice "B.O." in ourselves. But others do—instantly.

A warm-weather safeguard

End all "B.O." danger. Do as millions of particular men and women are doing. Wash and bathe with Lifebuoy. Its creamy, abundant, searching lather penetrates and purifies pores—removes all odor—gives bath-to-bath freshness and freedom from "B.O." worries.

A wonderful complexion soap

Dull, cloudy complexions quickly respond to Lifebuoy's gentle, yet thorough, cleansing. That 100 degrees of heat predicted by the weather people for Labor day was a little slow in arriving, but it got here all right, and mighty close to intact, at that.

The department of state's reply to China's request, that this country intervene in the current dispute between Mexico and China, amounts to the statement that this country is not anxious just at present to pull any chestnuts out of the fire.

Howard Bonham, the Chicago gunman found guilty of shooting to death Paul Tulupan, last December, has been denied a new trial and sentenced to die in the electric chair. And for ages it has been held that the leopard can not change its spots!

Marion Davies, of motion picture fame, has paid $800,000 to settle the government income tax claim against her. As we have before remarked: the rewards of talent—high, medium and commonplace—are not equally distributed in this old land of ours.

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, blames prohibition for gangs and racketeering. Probably the whole country recognizes that it is largely responsible, but it's equally probable that not all will be honest enough to admit it.

Vigilance committees are being organized in northwestern Indiana with the avowed intention of driving out Capone hoodlums and gangsters, if the authorities longer neglect to act. For some time there has been "the writing on the wall" that there would be such an outcome as the result of present-day lawlessness.

Barbara Stanwyck has been ordered by a court out in Los Angeles to finish a picture for which she is to get $16,000 before she appears in a picture for a rival concern for which she is to receive $35,000. Isn't it a shame thus to force genius to execute its contracts and thus delay augmented financial recognition of high art?

A Montevideo cable tells about the working of the old Spanish prisoner swindle on a number of citizens of this country. It's remarkable how Americans are caught by a fraud as old that it has lost the gray whiskers which once adorned it.

"We're All Agreed."

Senator Bulkley's conference with Wayne county farmers settled two things: 1—Every one agrees to the proposition that agriculture must be put on its feet, and 2—no one knows how it can be done.

President Hoover thought he had a good idea and appointed a farm board. The farm board thought it had a good idea and incorporated stabilization corporations to buy wheat and cotton with public money. Now, most of the public money is gone, surpluses of wheat and cotton still exist to plague agriculturists, and the situation is more aggravated than ever.

The Wayne county farmers want no more of the farm board. They are in favor of sending its members home and, it is to be supposed, repealing the agricultural act. Some of them know, no doubt, that the remnants of the western farm bloc will never allow that to be done unless the equalization fee or the export debenture is thrown to them as a sop. The Wayne county farmers do not want these two "ideas" either. It is barely possible that they are beginning to mistrust "ideas." "The farmer had better hunt his own market, and not leave it to the board," one of them declared.

Senator Bulkley, who was on hand to learn what he could at first hand about farmer sentiment in one of the richest agricultural regions of his state, discovered nothing new, unless it might have been the vigorous dissatisfaction Wayne county farmers feel with the way things are being done. He promises that he will do his best to put the farm board out of harm's way and that he will try to vote intelligently on any farm legislation that comes up in the next session of congress.

It is recalled that the mice were all agreed that something should be done about the cat, but that they fell down on the best "idea" offered—tying a bell to the cat's tail. Consequently the cat still prowls noiselessly and the mice try to keep out of her way. That seems to be the farmers' one until bigger and better "ideas" can be conceived to help them.

Two Legislative Pictures.

Unquestionably one of the greatest tributes ever paid a British statesman in the house of commons was the ovation given Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, last week at the conclusion of his presentation of the supplementary budget, taxing both rich and poor, by which the emergency national government proposes to relieve the British treasury from its present financial distress. And it speaks well for British courage and stamina that, despite the decided additions to the already drastic tax burden borne by the people of Britain the supplementary budget will impose, the frail, care-worn chancellor was roundly cheered by all the parties assembled, even the members of the Labor opposition being partial to it.

As set out by the chancellor, Britain faces an apparent deficit of approximately $400,000,000 this year and $850,000,000 in the fiscal year 1931-1932. To meet this, it is proposed to cut the unemployment dole $127,000,000; educational expenditures, $31,500,000; the fighting services, $25,000,000, and salaries, $22,670,000. This will leave a deficit of about $185,000,000 for this year and about $400,000,000 for the next. The balances the government plans to raise by direct taxation, which will be in part borne by an element of the population which has never previously paid a direct tax.

Six pense—twice cents—will be added to the income tax, making a standard tax of five shillings on the pound, or twenty-five per cent. In other words, about $1.25 on every five dollars. The tax exemptions will be decreased and thus the tax will fall upon people earning under $2,500. The exemptions of $675 on single persons and $1,125 on married persons are reduced by the budget to $500 and $750, respectively. Allowances for children are reduced from $300 for the first born and $250 for each subsequent child to $250 and $200.

These figures, a London cable states, drew groans of astonishment from the Labor benches as they mean that for the first time in history a majority of the British trade unionists are liable to pay an income tax, which they have always looked upon as an impost on the rich and one which could be increased at will.

The great burden, however, is imposed on the surtax payers. Under the five-shilling basic rate they would be liable for a tax of twelve shillings and six pence on the pound—about three dollars on every five. Chancellor Snowden, however, boosted the rate ten per cent., and thus they must pay fourteen shillings on the pound—$3.50 on every five dollars. These increased taxes are expected to yield $145,000,000 this year and $285,000,000 next year. The necessary balance is to be raised by "luxury" taxes. Conforming to the chancellor's ideal "free breakfast table," tea, coffee and sugar escape taxation, but the tax on beer is increased two cents; the tobacco tax sixteen cents; a flat tax of 16⅔ per cent. is placed on theater and movie offerings and the tax on gasoline increased four cents, making it sixteen.

Summing up, Chancellor Snowden told how this year's budget is now balanced. To meet an estimated deficit of $373,000,000 he has found $110,000,000 in economies, $68,500,000 savings on debt redemption, and $202,500,000 in new taxation, thus showing a surplus of $7,500,000. In a full year the estimated surplus is expected to be the same.

Americans who grieve over the tax burdens they are bearing—admittedly far greater burdens than they should be asked to bear—may get some consolation that they are not residents of Britain and compelled to pay the tax rates imposed there. And all Americans should give thought to the course of the members of the British parliament in cutting expenditures with the tendency of the so-called statesmen of our own country to open the doors of the national treasury to every attempted treasury raid backed by an organized minority of our people. The British picture presents courageous lawmakers working for the welfare of their country. The American picture presents a cowardly body of lawmakers actuated chiefly by what they consider may be best for their individual interests.

"Gandhi Suspected of Being a Wet," reads a headline over a story from Bombay, India. Even a suspicion of the kind is bound to lose him support with an element over here, but if the story gets noised about in India it's not a marker to what it will do to his influence there, where liquor is anathema to a large religious element of the population.

Fred Pabst, president of the Milwaukee brewing company bearing his name, announces that his company has purchased an elevator in which to store grain in anticipation of the near legalization of beer by congress. About a year ago Mr. Pabst announced the purchase of beer-making equipment valued at $1,000,000 looking to the same end. All of which goes to show that there isn't really any limit to the ways in which to put out propaganda.

Pleasant Moments Abroad.

Mayor James J. Walker has the good wishes of all tolerant Americans in his fight to keep his health. If German beer, French wine, baccarat and ceremonies can do it, he will come back to New York City hale and hearty for another colorful interval as the figurehead of the political ship, Tammany.

Already his vitality has increased to the point where there is an overflow that permits ambition. "I am not running for any office. Nor am I running away from any," he equivocated for the benefit of the press in Paris last week. "I will never say I will not be a candidate for mayor, governor or senator—but I can say that if I am not mayor I would like to be senator."

Translated from the idiom of the politicians, James J. Walker, sometimes mayor of New York, will not pass up any chances to succeed his state's two Democratic senators, if their togas ever should slip from their shoulders during his lifetime. This is a notation that will be written down in political future books with heavy underscoring.

Pleasant moments abroad, far from the madding daris of Republican investigating committees and temporal cares, may some day be thanked for the renewed wiggling of the political virus that propelled James J. Walker right into the United States senate.

DROPPING THE TRAILER.

Editorial Opinion.

HOW THEY GROW.

Iowans who have viewed with suspicion the state income tax which still looms as a possible additional burden in this state, despite its defeat in the last general assembly, doubtless find their convictions appreciably strengthened by the glib manner in which Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, last week proposed a fifty per cent. increase in the income tax rates of that state to provide money for unemployment relief. The daring proposal and the passively approving attitude of the state legislature in receiving it illustrates aptly the many warnings voiced in Iowa last winter to the effect that an income tax, once established, is easily increased at the slightest political provocation. Even Republican party leaders in the New York legislature were tractable, announcing themselves "in full accord" with the "fundamentals" of the governor's plan, and predicting that "if any differences arise they will be over details" which should be "susceptible to adjustment without much delay."

Try to imagine such feeble resistance to a proposal to increase by fifty per cent. the tax burden on real and personal property! Even for so worthy a cause as relief of the unemployed, state legislators would be extremely wary and inquisitive about the "fundamentals" of any such proposal.

It is interesting to note that the sugar coating of the proposed New York income tax boost bears a strong resemblance to that of the proposed entering wedge in Iowa. So widely diffused would be the burden that the taxpayers scarcely would notice it.

"You will observe," noted Governor Roosevelt, "that the burden placed upon the man with small income is slight indeed; the single man, with an income of $3,000, for example, will pay an additional tax of only $2.50; the married man with a family earning $10,000 a year, will pay an additional tax of only $26 * * * There were approximately 300,000 personal income taxpayers this year—population of New York, 12,588,066. By spreading this burden among those people few of them will feel it to an appreciable extent and the whole body of our income-making citizenry will be sustaining their fair share of the burden."

If such arguments can be accepted unprotestingly by legislators as justification for a fifty per cent. increase in a state income tax, it would seem hardly necessary to advance any justifying arguments for lesser increases to take care of the continual demands of special interests. By such easy stages do income taxes grow.—Cedar Rapids Gazette.

What Will Better Marion?

The following are the answers of a number of citizens to the question, "What Will Better Marion?"—the second in the questionnaire circulated by Dr. Carl W. Sawyer to get a comprehensive insight into the community feeling regarding our home city, in the hope of arriving at a remedy for handicaps, if any, from which Marion may suffer.

To be more public-spirited.

Stop throwing mud, and think and feel that Marion is the best city in the country or we wouldn't be living here.

Encourage public officials instead of finding fault before they have a chance. If you are indifferent to their opinions, or ways of working, ask them about it instead of finding fault to others.

More confidence in our fellow-men.

Talk up our city. It is a good place in which to live. Make home a better place to raise the family. Parents stay home more. Children on the streets too much. Every organization, church society, etc., is always hunting up some plan to outdo the other fellow in getting people out to suppers, etc. Where is the rest of the family. Some of it is all right. When mother and father go the children want to go some place and after a while the children having formed the habit, just go anyway.

Educate the public to exercise their right of citizenship by voting for what is in their opinion the most efficient candidate for public office. Then give that official their wholehearted cooperation rather than try to hinder the successful administration of the affairs of the office. If criticism is necessary, let it be of the constructive nature rather than the destructive.

Teeth, Diet and Cleanliness.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Every day, evidence accumulates to prove that good teeth depend almost entirely upon proper diet. Much experimental work is being done in this field.

No matter where we go we see signs and other advertisements telling us of the importance of proper cleansing of the teeth. Various tooth-pastes and mouth-washes are advocated to prevent tooth decay.

Children in the schools are shown how to use their toothbrushes. They are taught the importance of brushing the teeth so as to get into the crevices, and to massage the gums. Care of the teeth has now become common knowledge.

In spite of the increased use of the toothbrush, tooth decay has continued to increase. It is now evident to most dentists and physicians, to all who are interested in this great problem, that cleansing the teeth once or twice a day is not alone sufficient to prevent the spread of decay.

Unless the diet is the proper one, all the care that we can give the teeth will not preserve them. Of course, it is not contended that if the diet is correct, it is proper to overlook the daily hygiene of the teeth. Diet and cleanliness should go hand in hand.

Not long ago a series of interesting experiments were started in England and in this country. These experiments, though not done on human beings, gave important information as to the part the diet plays in the care of the teeth.

As a result of these experiments it was definitely proved that the outer layer of the teeth, which is spoken of as the "enamel," is the layer which resists decay. When there is a poor diet this layer may be destroyed, showing cracks or areas of roughness which allow the decay to enter the deeper parts and to permit infection.

To keep the enamel in proper condition, it is important that the diet should contain sufficient lime, phosphorous and other food elements. There should be plenty of substances yielding vitamin D. This assists in the growth of the teeth, and insures strong bone development.

Foods which supply these demands of the teeth are the foods which should be contained in everybody's daily diet. They include plenty of milk, butter and eggs. These are the most common foods which give an abundance of this vital element spoken of as vitamin D. Of course there are other foods which will supply this vitamin, and insure good lime development. Such foods as cod-liver oil, fish oils, suet, butter and egg yolk are highly recommended.

Orienting the Earth.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the essential and indispensable acts of human life is that of orientation. We should, first of all, try to determine, to know, just where we are. To be lost is to be futile, to be of no account. We can not accomplish anything useful, valuable or creative in the world, unless we are related to our environment. And this is not possible unless we locate ourselves in space, in time, in society.

It seems difficult to realize that the people of the world have been exceedingly slow in orienting themselves. Astronomers, after long and laborous efforts, finally arrived at the conclusion that the sun was at or very near the center of what we call the solar system. Here is a great galaxy—a somewhat thin, disk-shaped body, stretching out longitudinally to great distances. During the nineteenth century, for example, Newcomb assumed that the diameter of the galactic system was about 6,000 light-years. But the evidence that the sun was in the center of the system was not conclusive. Newcomb assumed that it was in the center; but he raised this question which may truly be called prophetic: "One reflection may occur to the thinking reader as he sees these reasons for deeming our position in the universe to be a central one. Ptolemy showed by evidence which from his standpoint looked as sound as that which we have cited that the earth was fixed in the center of the universe. May we not be the victims of some fallacy as he was?"

During the nineteenth century, the great problem was to discover the scale of the universe. If you have a small box to measure, a suitable scale is one inch. If you have a piece of land to measure, a rod, or even a yard, or a foot—but not an inch—would be a suitable unit for the scale. If you want to determine the dimensions of the earth, notably its circumference and diameter, we find that a mile is a suitable unit. But suppose we wish to discover a suitable scale for the universe?

A tentative unit, first chosen, was what is called the astronomical unit. The distance from the earth to the sun is the astronomical unit: 93,000,000 miles. But a new unit had to be chosen when William Herschel, early in the nineteenth century, found that Sirius was distant not less than six and three-quarters light-years. Anew unit then had to be chosen—the unit used today—the light-year.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Poll Tax in Ohio.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The capitation system or poll tax plan is the simplest and most ancient method of raising government revenue. It was of common practice in England for some time after the Middle ages, being gradually superseded by property taxes, but was quite generally used in the New England colonies. It was rather popular there after independence was established, but Ohio placed a ban on it from the very beginning.

The first constitution of this state contained the provision that: "The levy of taxes by the poll is grievous and oppressive, therefore the legislature shall never levy a poll tax for county or state purposes." That provision was carried over without change into the constitution adopted in 1851.

It was evaded through many years, however, as to the construction of roads, as it was done under the direction of township trustees. The legislature provided a law by which the equivalent of two days work on the roads every year could be required of every male citizen over twenty-one years old and under forty-five. A day's work at that time was worth one dollar, so that one who preferred to pay rather than work could be relieved of the duty by paying to the road supervisor two dollars, with which the supervisor was supposed to employ others to render the service.

The road supervisor rarely had any knowledge as to road-building, and the money and labor were virtually thrown away. The practice was brought to an end by the adoption of an amendment proposed by the constitutional convention of 1912, which reads: "No poll tax shall be levied in this state, nor service required which may be commuted into money or other things of value." This was aimed at the evasion of the constitutional provision against the poll tax in any form.

It ended the practice, but the coming of modern roads was at hand, so that it made no difference to Ohio so far as good roads were concerned.

Surrounded by a posse pursuing him as the murderer of Miss Della Halsey, Jasper Newman shot and killed himself in his father's barn five miles south of Kenton. The tragedy was the culmination of an unhappy love affair.

The Star reported the marriage by Rev. Father Joseph Ryan, of Miss Carrie Louise Eberet, of five miles south of LaRue, and Mr. John Hunt, Jr., o. Glynwood, near Cincinnati.

The Star reported a notable address made before the meeting of the Northwestern Medical association, in session here the day before, by Dr. J. B. Murphy, of Chicago.

Superintendent F. H. Stafford, of the LaRue schools, came very near dying as the result of eating toadstools which he mistook for mushrooms.

The Star reported the marriage, the night before by Dr. D. H. Bailey, of Miss Hattie A. Barkley and Mr. Benjamin H. Smith.

Miss Bertha Butz and Mr. Harry W. Kull were married by Rev. J. W. Schillinger.

The Brotherhood of St. Andrew, so the Star reported, was organized in St. Paul's parish-house.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Carson C. Whitmer, of Charles street.

Benjamin Monk, seventeen, found two dynamite caps near Owens and rubbed them together. The result was the loss of the thumb and index finger of his left hand.

It further proved only fifteen per cent. of the public is greedy. The other eighty-five ate with no greater gusto than when paying for each item. At first, restaurants furnished free carbonate of soda for gluttons, but had no calls. A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Sept. 14—If one Mr. McGugin, of Coffeyville, Kansas, is not careful he may find himself an unpopular man when he comes to Washington in December to serve his first term as a member of congress—

For McGugin has let it be known that he intends offering bills in the house calling for a twenty-five per cent. cut in salaries of all federal people—those elected, those appointed and just plain government employes.

It's not a move particularly conducive to personal popularity in a city like Washington, where the bulk of population depends on Uncle Sam for the bi-monthly pay check, half-holidays on Saturday, and early dismissal on days when the thermometer climbs up around 100 degrees.

Nor will McGugin's plea that it will help end the present depression, and his promise of extending it for only three years, aid much. Government workers as a rule are not likely to be moved by such proposals.

* * *

Even his colleagues in the house and senate have shown a disposition of fondness for their pay. Some six years ago when their salaries were raised from $7,500 to $10,000 a year, there were bitter moments in both houses before the increase went through.

Charges of "holier than thou" were hurled at those who opposed the raise. "Custodians of the senate's conscience" was another descriptive phrase.

William Borah, of Idaho, was one of the chief opponents. He went so far as to refuse to take the increase until he had been reelected to a job paying the larger sum. It was not until he was sworn in on March 4 of this year, for a new term, that he agreed to accept the $10,000.

It was during this debate that Thomas Heflin, favorable to the raise, delivered his celebrated "mint julep" jibe at Borah—a classic in senate lore.

* * *

It concerned the man who had drunk too wisely, but too well, and had appealed to his doctor to help him "taper off" without arousing his wife's suspicions. The doctor was to prescribe mint juleps, the patient was to appear as resisting them.

Finally, at his wife's insistence "the amber-colored liquid flowed over the velvet ruffle of his stomach like a dewdrop sinking into the heart of a rose."

Faintly he inquired: "When must I take another?"

She replied: "In two hours."

"Well," he said, "if I am asleep wake me and if I won't take it, make me."

Fourth, with his broad back toward her, made no sign that he had heard. He was standing directly in front of Eugenie Frye, and now he began to talk as though he were continuing an uninterrupted conversation. "I could hardly believe it" he said in a loud artificial tone, "but the man was intoxicated, Mrs. Frye. He was hardly able to put two sensible words—"

"Fourth!" Sam stamped her foot. "Don't be ridiculous! Don't pretend that you didn't hear what I said!"

"Ah." Fourth turned about and faced the little group at the front door. His normally florid face was a dead white and his Adam's apple was twitching, but he managed a correctly apologetic little bow "You'll pardon me, Joan, but Mrs. Frye and I were in the midst of an interesting conversation You were saying?"

"Don't be ridiculous!" Once more Sam stamped her foot. "Here's Nelson, Fourth. Aren't you going to speak to him?"

Fourth's bright blue eyes regarded his son dispassionately, as though Nelson were some not particularly interesting biological specimen. "Speak to him?" he murmured "Of course How are you, Nelson" Thoughtful of you to drop in"

Fourth bowed gravely and, turning his back, once more began to converse with the widow Frye. Nelson looked at Sam. "Something tells me we'd better be going" he said wearily.

"Nonsense!" said Sam hotly "You're going to stay right where you are. Not only that, but we're going to put an end to all this childishness right here and now Sit down, Nelson, please. You sit down, Martha, too."

When the pair had seated themselves on the davenport Sam walked over to Fourth. "Fourth" she pleaded almost tearfully, "please don't be so hateful."

"Hateful!" Fourth looked down at her and shook his head sadly. "You asked me to do something, Joan, and unless I'm mistaken, I did it. Is that being hateful?"

"It is, and you know it! You didn't really speak to Nelson You just said 'how do you do' and turned your back. You mustn't act that way, Fourth. You must talk to Nelson—and to Martha, too!"

'Must I? That's an interesting idea. When I come to think of it, it might be amusing, too." He smiled gently. "I might, for instance, ask Nelson if he is thinking of going in for larceny in a really big way."

"Fourth!"

"Yes," Fourth continued smoothly, "that would be an interesting topic to discuss with Nelson, but his wife might be more difficult. It wouldn't be tactful, I suppose for me to show an interest in her father's business" He shook his head "That might sound fishy."

"Fourth!" Sam gasped and took an involuntary step backward Before she could recover herself, Nelson was at his father's side

"Be careful what you say!" Nelson was blurting furiously Be careful what you say, do you understand? You can insult me all you like, but you'd better not make another remark like that about my wife! If you do I'll—"

Fourth ignored him He turned to the widow Frye, who was a frightened huddle in her chair "It seems a shame," he said in her regretfully, "to bring this delightful visit of yours to an end, but I am afraid the time has come when I had better take you home."

In absolute silence Fourth assisted Eugenie with her coat and then put on his own Sam, in a sort of daze, was unable to find words even when the widow stood at the threshold on the point of departure. Fourth Aldersea seemed to be the only one who had complete control of his faculties

"I won't be gone long," Joan" Fourth glanced absently about the room as he prepared to close the door behind him "You might open a window or two, if you don't mind. It seems stuffy in here" He nodded. "Yes Just a bit stuffy."

When Fourth returned, three-quarters of an hour later, he found Sam seated alone on the davenport staring stonily at the embers of the fire. She did not look up when he came in nor did she speak Fourth took off his overcoat and threw it on a chair Then he glanced about him, sniffed, and began to pace up and down with long strides

After a time he stopped in front of Sam and thrust both hands deep into his coat pockets "My God, Sam," he demanded hoarsely, "what am I going to do? I can't stand this. I can't stand it!"

PLAN WASHINGTON MEMORIAL TREES

Extensive Planting Proposed in Ohio to Honor First President

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O. Sept. 14—Cherry trees, as a memorial to George Washington, may dot the state of Ohio in a few years as a part of the program planned for next year by the legislative committee which is arranging Ohio's Washington bicentennial observance.

Heads of the national movement have asked the committee to urge all schools in the state to plant a memorial tree to George Washington next year, and the tree selected in Ohio probably will be a cherry tree, due to the story about the first President and his hatchet, it was said

In Ohio the tree planting probably will be arranged on Arbor Day. Schools would therefore be asked to plant two trees, instead of one, on that date The bicentennial observance will start on Feb 22, the date of Washington's birth, and continue until Thanksgiving.

Detailed plans for the Ohio observance will be worked out at the next meeting, to be held at Toledo at the call of State Senator L. L. Marshall, Republican, of Cleveland, the chairman.

Ceremonies of various kinds will be arranged during the year, according to present plans.

VIEWS DIFFER ON HIGHWAY SERVICE

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O, Sept 14—Wide difference of opinion about the efficiency of the state highway department, which is now under investigation by the state senate, has come to light here.

While state senators, headed by David P Lorbach, Democrat of Cincinnati, have been investigating the department in search of weaknesses and faults, two of Canada's highway experts have been inspecting the same department, hunting for "pointers" and ideas

Calling the Ohio highway department one of the best they know, Col W P. Wilgar, professor of civil engineering at Queens College in Ontario, Canada, and E. F. Haaning, division engineer in Ontario came here to make a study of the Ohio system No other state department in the United States was visited by the Canadians.

OFFICER PROTESTS AGAINST PIGEONS

By International News Service

COLUMBUS, O, Sept. 14—The possibility loomed here that pigeons, which have become pests around county courthouses, may find refuge, along with statehouse squirrels, on the statehouse campus.

"Pigeons have become a regular pest and nuisance about our county courthouse and I am writing to ask you if the county commissioners can declare them a nuisance and have them killed," a Washington county humane officer wrote to Attorney General Gilbert Bettman.

Although referring the humane officer to the prosecutor of his home county for an opinion, the attorney general indicated the pigeons might be sent here to be given residence in the statehouse campus.

KROGER'S

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

YESTERDAY was Sunday, but it wasn't as bad as next Sunday, and today, which was Monday are going to be. I will get washed next Sunday by my aunt and I will get washed next Monday too, because next Monday will be the first day of school, and unless I get some kind of sickness or break a leg or something I will be back in school But I will probly be in school, for I don't have much luck that way.

I pushed Jubilee out of bed yesterday morning, and it wasn't quite daylight, because the nights are getting longer and the days shorter or something It would be funny if something would slip some time and it would be night all day and light all night. But I bet if it did the grownups would change things around so that I would have to go to school at night. It would be more fun going to school in the dark. It would be funny to have my mother call me and tell me it was getting dark and it was time for me to get up and milk the dummed brutes, but it wouldn't be so much fun playing ball in the dark, or going out behind the poorhouse for a swim. The poorhouse has got a lot more people in it than it had, so business must be good for them. My grandfather says it is because of the depression, whatever that is. He says when people have to give up their old folks or their autos they mostly keep their autos.

Feeble and Tootsie and Maggie were over before I had finished feeding my face, and when I has smuck some pancakes and a fried egg and a piece of bacon out to Jubilee she said that the twins have got a new buggy that somebody gave them, and it is big enough for them both to ride in. We all went around to see the new buggy and the twins were asleep in it, and when we had looked at them for a while we started to go and Feeble said to wait till she changed the twins and she would come with us. I thought that would be a good joke on her mother, so I went back to see her change them, but she meant change their clothes so I caught up with the twins and we went to the pasture. I am glad we haven't got twins at our house and I am glad I am not a girl, and I'm glad I have got something to be glad about when it is no more time to start school.

Today we were playing ball on the vacant lot, and Feeble's mother just told her to take the twins out in their buggy because she wants them to have lots of fresh air, and she don't know Feeble would take them out of the yard Feeble was at bat when her mother got her by the ear Bandy wheeled the twins home so Feeble's mother wouldn't have to let go of her ear I would hate to be him Feeble never forgets She is like an elephant.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen Changes His Attitude Following Madge's Threat.

I WAS breathless—inside—as I finished my defiance of Philip Veritzen, following his implied ultimatum that I must either obey him in the matter of going away with Dicky or must lose his sponsorship of my play But I flatter myself that for once I was able to preserve a "poker face" and that my own counter ultimatum of taking my play to some other producer had been presented without any apparent agitation.

Not a muscle of his own face changed, but something very shrewd, showed away back in his eyes at the covert threat.

Veritzen Backs Down

"You evidently have misunderstood my meaning," he said with magnificent disregard of the truth "I asked you if you knew what this refusal would mean and you evidently interpreted my words as meaning that I would no longer consider your play You ought to know that such an interpretation is absurd I meant only that we would be unable to work together harmoniously if your ideas of discipline clashed so strongly with mine.

"You have shocked and grieved me very deeply, have made it well-nigh impossible for me to take the keen delight in producing your play which I had expected would be my portion when I once set to work upon it But as for rejecting it—my dear Mrs Graham—I am a man of my word I have said I would put your play into production almost immediately, if the fourth act suits me. That word is still in effect.

"I shall not see you again until the ten days which you have mentioned are up Then I shall come back expecting to see the completed fourth act May I take this manuscript with me? I already have the other two acts, you know."

"Of course" My pulses were pounding. There was something so infinitely patronizing, so almost insulting, in his announcement that he would stick by his word and produce my play, regardless of his displeasure with me, that I had all I could do to keep from flinging his offer back at him and telling him that he could not have my play under any conditions Only the surmise that he was as anxious to keep my play as I was to sell it to him, and that he would not permit it to go to a rival producer if he could help it, enabled me to keep a tight rein upon my temper.

"I find this manuscript typed for you," I said, with the same frigidity in my voice which I had heard in his, "I expected, of course, that you would take it away with you, and ten days from now at eleven o'clock in the morning, I SHALL have the fourth act completed, ready for your inspection"

Veritzen Departs

He bowed from the waist—he had been standing since he had first used the word "forbid" to me. Then crossing to me he lifted my hand to his lips and kissed it as punctiliously as if there was not in his heart a bitter, baffled anger.

With equal formal courtesy, I went with him to the door I waited only until he was safely down the steps before dashing back into the library to find Lillian solemnly executing the steps of a little dance.

"Oh, ha! ha!" she said as I came in 'this is of such a drollness"

She spread her hands in a little Gallic gesture and then, dropping the pose rushed across to me and thumped me upon the back enthusiastically.

"Oh, boy!" she exclaimed. "How the mighty have fallen. I've got to slip it to you, old dear, you've done something to him no one has succeeded in doing for years. You certainly dusted him off the plate that time. You sure have him by the short hair. He doesn't want that play to get away from him, the wily old fox, and you can judge how badly he wants it by the slice of humble pie he is willing to eat. You could not ask for a more satisfying tribute to your play. But take off the laurel wreath and put it in camphor for a few days. Luncheon is almost ready and the family is all lined up for a farewell."

I went with her to the dining-room and was greeted with a cyclone as Roderick and Junior flung themselves upon me. Hank and Bill were just behind them, and a little further back, Dicky's mother, my father, Harry, Dicky and Katherine were standing with faces filled with expectant interest. They were all anxiously awaiting the news of Philip Veritzen's reaction to my third act and I had the sensation of being wrapped in something warm and fleecy as I sensed their affectionate anxiety.

"What's the verdict, Lady Fair?" Harry Underwood's big voice boomed, voicing the question that all of them were looking for, and as he had spoken for them so his wife replied for me

"Three hundred and fifty per cent plus," she crowed "Madge certainly is sitting pretty, on top of the world as far as that play is concerned"

"He liked it then?" Dicky asked. "Why so ladylike?" Lillian mocked.

"'Liked' is a 'feeble word' He simply ate it up. The revision suited him and he didn't have a word of criticism anywhere, and, oh boy! wasn't I proud of our Madge when she stood up to the old boy and told him he could take his beautiful personality-plus out and chuck it into the lake for all she cared while she took her chances on selling her play to another producer"

"What's that?" Dicky said. "Say that again, please."

PRESBIES BATTLE IRISH IN LITTLE WORLD SERIES TODAY

TITLE ASPIRANTS IN ATTEMPT TO BREAK TIE OF LAST WEEK

St. Mary's Victory Will End Series; Game Starts at 6 P. M. Prompt.

After staggering through a 7-7 deadlock last Friday the First Presbyterians and St Mary's church teams will make another effort today to move a notch closer the city recreation baseball championship The game will start at 6 p. m at Lincoln park.

Last Friday the Irish and Presbies floundered around for seven frames in a virtual comedy of errors, without deciding the winner. A victory for the Irish would have given them the city championship while a Presbyterian victory would have forced the series into one more game. However, as a result of the tie Friday, there is a possible chance that two games will have yet to be played. If the Irish win today the series is completed and the Main street church team is champion. Should the Presbies win, another game will be played, probably Wednesday, for the title.

Gene Gunder for the Irish and Don Shoemaker for the Presbyterians will oppose each other on the mound today. Gunder already has two victories to his credit for the series and is out to make it three in a row today.

Spectators are expected to turn out en masse for today's game. In the first Presbyterian-Irish game of the series nearly 1,000 passed through the gates while at least 1,100 clicked the turnstiles last Friday. These are the two largest crowds of the series to date. It wouldn't be surprising to see the 1,100 mark passed today.

JENNER LUNCH NINE LOSES FINAL GAME OF TOURNAMENT 8-4

"Doc" Stith Too Tough for Marion Team, So Columbus Cops Title; Nevada Walloped in Preliminary Exhibition Clash, 9-0.

THE Linden Gophers of Columbus are champions of the first central Ohio recreation baseball tournament. They won the right to the title yesterday at Lincoln park before a crowd estimated at 1100, by plastering an 8-4 shellacking on the Jenner's Lunch team of Marion. The victory marked the fourth consecutive tournament win for "Doc" Stith, hurling for the Gophers.

The Gophers launched a 10-hit hitting attack on Bob Gamble, starting Jenner pitcher in the first frame After striking out the first man, Gamble walked the second and the third drove a clean single to left field. Call then strode to the plate and smacked one against the left field fence over Applegett's head and three runs were across the plate.

Broke Loose in Fourth

Gamble managed to keep the Gophers from scoring more runs until the fourth inning but the heavy bats of the visitors started functioning again in this and blasted Gamble from the mound after running the score to 7-0. Applegett replaced Gamble and stopped the scoring spree

"Hap" was nicked for only three hits, and one run in his four and one-third inning stay on the mound He gave way to Bacon in the ninth.

Stith held the Jenner nine hitless until the sixth frame when "Red" Whitcum dropped a Texas leaguer in short right. Whitcum then made himself the only Marion batter to get more than a single hit in the game by rapping out a four bagger when Stith tossed a slow ball across the plate in the eighth inning.

Just Playing Around

The Gophers eased down in the ninth frame and toyed around with the losers, allowing them to hammer out hits that netted three scores before bearing down and retiring the side.

In a preliminary exhibition game Marion hammered out a 9-0 victory over Nevada. Roscoe Rank set Nevada down with a single hit in this game. Minor Keller, Nevada pitcher, rapped out a single to center field in the second inning and that was the only hit of the game for Nevada. "Fido" Robbins clouted a home run in the sixth inning for Marion, breaking a scoreless tie and starting Marion on the way to the one sided victory.

The Linden Gophers of Columbus and East Liverpool, champions of the Tri-state tournament, are expected to clash at Lincoln park in a double header next Sunday. Complete details of this game will be announced in The Star Tuesday. The East Liverpool nine won the title by defeating a crack field in a tournament which closed there last week.

Boos Fade Away as 'Rajah' Bangs Out Four-Baser

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 14—Rogers Hornsby may be anything but the darling of his Cub baseball fans, but he still can make 'em like him for what he is able to accomplish

His aging legs will not let him play every day, and he draws a lot of booing from the crowds at Wrigley field, but his indifference to what the customers think never was more gloriously vindicated than in the eleventh inning of the first game of yesterday's doubleheader with the Boston Braves.

Hornsby had yanked himself from the Cub lineup, sending Lester Bell to third base in an effort to insert more punch into the Bruins' drive to grab off third money in the National league. After the Cubs had taken a two-run lead, the Braves tied it up in the ninth and in the eleventh inning of the dramatic battle, Hornsby, courting more boos from the crowd of 23,000, selected himself to try to pull the ball game out of the fire.

With one out, Bell doubled and Vince Barton was purposely passed Freddy McGuire made a great stop of Dan Taylor's grounder to make it two out and the rally appeared to be choked. Another intentional walk put Charlie Grimm on, and the bases were full with Rollie Hemsley coming to bat. Hornsby summoned Hemsley back to the dugout and marched to the plate.

Those who wanted to cheer did so; those who wanted to boo did that, and the latter outnumbered the former by thousands. The booing was augmented when Bruce Cunningham, the Boston hurler, slipped over a called strike on the rajah. But things changed right there.

Hornsby crashed the next pitch into the right field stands for a line drive home run—the game was won and few of the 23,000 spectators did anything but cheer

During the recent eastern trip the rajah nominated himself as a pinch batsman; rammed out a home run to tie the score in the ninth and the Cubs went on to win

Adams Shrinks Hurler's Target

There are almost as many jokes about "Sparky" Adams' bulk as there are about a Scotchman's generosity. He has been called a bat boy and a midget, and dubbed with such nicknames as Junior, Skippy and Rabbit

SPARKY ADAMS

Earl, to give the Cards third baseman his right name, really stands 5 feet 4½ inches He is the shortest man in the majors, falling to come up to Rabbit Maranville by half an inch. Pitchers dread to see him approach the plate, for his stature makes throwing to him difficult. In addition he hits a ball hard.

He has a fine throwing arm and is rated a clever guardian of the hot corner.

Johnson Pays Tribute To Great Philadelphia Team

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The sincerest tribute to the great baseball played by the Athletics this year comes from Walter Johnson.

"They haven't had a single slump all season," says the manager of the pursuing Washington Senators. "Even the best of clubs generally slow down a bit at some point in the season, but the Athletics haven't"

For this showing he gives the greatest credit to the pitching of Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg and the batting of Cochrane, Simmons and Foxx.

Walters own team underwent a perfectly human slump which resulted in muffing a mid-season chance to overhaul the Athletics.

"Cronin, Myer and Manush all stopped hitting at once, just when we were within a game of the Athletics," he explains. "Before we knew it they had opened up a gap of a dozen games."

To Stand Pat

In spite of this failure he expects to make a few changes in his lineup for next year, although he hopes that if the boys have to lose their batting eyes they won't do it all at once and just at the time for the "big push" against the A's.

"Outside of trying to get a right fielder and a couple of young pitchers," says Johnson, "we don't plan any changes for next year"

Johnson has been using Dave Harris in right against left-handed pitchers and Sam Rice against right handers

While both have done good work on occasion, Johnson feels he should have a younger player in the position to round out his team.

Sees Slump for Grove

The "Big Train" and his men have high hopes of ending the reign of the A's next year. They base their optimism on the contention that it isn't possible for any pitcher to have two such years as Lefty Grove has had this season and for a team to travel through two campaigns without a slump. "Old Barney" speaks highly of the youngsters—Cramer, McNair and Williams—whom Connie Mack has found to plug important holes, but he believes his own young players are as promising. He expects to see Joe Kuhel, youthful Washington first baseman, improve his batting form considerably next season.

CHICAGO WHITE SOX IN TWO EXTRA INNING GAMES WITH BOSTON

Sunday Closing Finally Ends Second Setto; Cleveland Loses to Senators.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

The American league has teams that are better than the Chicago White Sox and a few that are even less successful, but there is none to dispute the Sox claim of working harder than any other team for victories.

Chicago played four games on Saturday and Sunday struggling through 46 innings, and the best they could get out of it was two victories. The second game of each doubleheader ended in a tie. After beating the New York Yankees in 13 innings Saturday, they played a ten inning 13-13 tie before darkness stopped them. Yesterday Chicago downed the Boston Red Sox 6 to 5 in the opener behind Red Faber's effective relief pitching, then went 14 frames to a 2-2 draw The Massachusetts Sunday law finally halted the struggle.

Gehrig Raps Hard

The New York Yankees come closer than any other team to threatening Chicago's long distance record. After the two overtime battles with the White Sox, the Yanks played a third extra inning game in the first half of yesterday's doubleheader, going twelve frames to defeat the Detroit Tigers, 2 to 1

Lou Gehrig's forty-third homer of the season made it possible for the Yanks to win the second game in nine innings, 4 to 3.

Alvin Crowder gave Washington an easy triumph over Cleveland in the remaining American league game. Crowder allowed Cleveland only six hits and made three himself to win 7 to 1 Philadelphia and St Louis were idle

Chicago's Cubs provided the big thrill of the National league program although the St. Louis Cardinals took another long step toward clinching the pennant. The Cubs won the first game from the Boston Braves, 11 to 7, when Manager Rogers Hornsby went in as a pinch hitter in the eleventh and clouted a home run Guy Bush completed the string of five straight victories that established the Cubs firmly in third place when he pitched his second one-hit game of the year to win the second clash 8 to 1

Cards Gain One

The Cards gained a full game on the second place New York Giants, making their margin nine games as they defeated the Phillies, 6 to 2, and 7 to 2, behind the brilliant pitching of Paul Derringer, and Bill Hallahan. Each pitcher recorded his seventeenth victory of the season. Pep Martin's two homers featured the second game

The Giants ran into a severe setback at Cincinnati when Larry Benton bested Bill Walker in a mound duel that marked the first game of a doubleheader. The Reds scored the only run of the game in the ninth inning The Giants hammered out an early lead against Benny Frey in the second game and won 9 to 4.

Fred Heimach of Brooklyn threatened the National league fielding record for pitchers as he handled ten chances in a game with Pittsburgh. The league record is eleven He also came out with a 6 to 5 victory as the Robins rallied for three runs off Glenn Spencer in the ninth.

Maroon Captain

Sam Horwitz, one of the outstanding linemen of the Big Ten conference last year is captain of this season's Chicago football team Horwitz is out to help A. A. Stagg make his 40th season of coaching at the Maroon institution a success. He'll probably do his share

Salesman's Life Fate of Grimes

During 15 years as a National leaguer, Burleigh Grimes, big righthander of the Cardinals, has been traded almost often enough to establish himself as a medium of exchange.

BURLEIGH GRIMES

First he was with Pittsburgh, then with Brooklyn, then with the Giants, next with the Pirates again, then with Boston and final ly St. Louis.

His longest stay was with the Dodgers, from 1918 to 1927, and his shortest with the Braves—a few weeks in the spring of 1930

Despite this moving around, Grimes has had nine seasons when he won 17 games or more, and five when he won 20 or better In 1920, he won 23 and lost 11 for the Dodgers, who won the pennant that year.

IRISH GRID COACHES DIFFER ON PROSPECT OF WINNING ELEVEN

Anderson Confident of Good Year, but Chevigny Doleful as Season Nears.

By The Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 14—You can get three different answers by asking Jesse Harper, Heartley Anderson, or Jack Chevigny what kind of football team Notre Dame will send out this fall, to take care of the schedule arranged by the late Knute Rockne.

Harper, who taught Rockne his football, and who has returned to the camp of the fighting Irish to be athletic director, thinks Notre Dame will have a "pretty good team" He is neither optimistic nor pessimistic.

"We have the makings of a good line," Anderson says, and I think Chevigny will give us another good backfield We have lost Frank Carideo, Marty Brill, Larry Mullins, Joe Savoldi, Paul O'Connor and some other fine backs, but we have a big squad and enough men who played last season to give us a good start, in addition to some promising first year candidates"

Chevigny, the junior coach is anything but optimistic As backfield coach under Rockne, in 1929 and 1930, he developed great attacking forces, and the responsibility of building another one rests with him this year—the most trying in the football history of Notre Dame

"We'll have a backfield and substitutes, but you can't replace men like Carideo, Brill, Mullins and O'Connor just because you want to," was Chevigny's answer.

Same Attack Likely

Notre Dame will use the same stuff that Rockne taught and left with Anderson and Chevigny Opposing teams will try to stop the famous shift and the repetition of one or two plays until they click ing a game, will again be the notice able feature. The line, led by Captain Tom Yarr, will be made up of such veterans as Paul Host and Ed Kosky, ends; Al Sulver and Joe Kurth, tackles, and Nordy Hoffman, guard. Returning to the big problem department, the backfield will be Chuck Jaskwhich. Carl Cronin, of whom much is expected, Marchy Schwartz, a great star and the only regular from last year Mike Koken, Nick Lukats and Dee Hanley if he is eligible.

The schedule, a huge part of Rock's legacy to Harper, Anderson and Chevigny, follows:

Oct. 3, Indiana at Bloomington Oct. 10, Northwestern at Soldier Field, Chicago; Oct. 17, Drake at South Bend; Oct 24, Pittsburgh at South Bend; Oct 31, Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh; Nov. 7, Pennsylvania at South Bend; Nov. 14, Navy at Baltimore; Nov. 21, Southern California at South Bend; Nov. 28, Army at New York.
